

Person-Centered Transition Support

We meet with individuals who qualify for Medicaid and are considering moving out of a nursing home to return living in the community. We conduct an interview with the individual and explain the process of working with the Transition Coordination Agency (TCA) to find housing and support options to successfully be independent and, if interested, make referrals to the TCAs.

History of ADRC

The Aging and Disability Resource Center program is a collaborative effort of the Administration on Aging (AoA), the Administration for Community Living (ACL), the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services (CMS) and the Veterans Administration (VA).

In 2005, the CO Department of Human Services obtained a federal grant to design and start the implementation process of Aging and Disability Resource Centers, creating Aging and Disability Resources for Colorado.

Aging and Disability Resources

Our mission is to help maintain an individual's independence and dignity in their home and community.

About ADRC

Aging and Disability Resources for Colorado (ADRC) provides a coordinated access point to long-term services and supports. ADRC empowers and assists older adults, adults with a disability and their caregivers to navigate health and long-term care options by providing options counseling in a person-centered manner.

ADRC serves adults 60 years of age and older, adults 18+ with a need for long-term services and supports (LTSS), their caregivers and veterans of any age. ADRC provides streamlined access to available LTSS and counseling to help the older adults and adults with a disability in Colorado receive the services they need to remain independent in the community.

Who May Qualify

Weld County adults 60 years of age and older, adults 18+ with a need for long-term services and supports (LTSS), their caregivers and veterans of any age.
